BOY KILLED BY GATOR MOURNED AT NEBRASKA FUNERAL

Mourners gathered at a Nebraska church on Tuesday to remember a 2-year-old boy who was grabbed and drowned by an alligator while vacationing with his family last week at the Disney World Resort in Florida, a church official said. The private service for Lane Graves at St. Patrick's Catholic Church in the Omaha suburb of Elkhorn, came a week after his death captured international attention and called into question how Disney handles the risk from alligators at the resort. "We ask that you pray for this family and respect their privacy as they go through such a devastating event," St. Patrick's Parish said in a statement on its website. The church is accepting donations to benefit the boy's family, who live in Elkhorn. REUTERS

CLERK OPPOSED TO GAY MARRIAGE SAYS STATE LAW NEGATES APPEAL

2 The Kentucky clerk who was jailed for refusing to issue marriage licenses to gay couples asked a federal appeals court on Tuesday to dismiss her appeal because the state's new law to remove clerks' names from licenses made her action unnecessary. Attorneys for Rowan County clerk Kim Davis filed a motion with the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals asking for the dismissal since the state's new law will go into effect two weeks before the case was due for oral arguments. Last summer, Davis refused to issue licenses to gay couples after the U.S. Supreme Court's decision to legalize same-sex marriage, drawing international attention and triggering demonstrations and legal actions. TWITTER USERS CAN POST 140-SECOND VIDEOS

3 Twitter, known for its 140-character limit on tweets, is now allowing users to post longer videos — of up to 140 seconds. The change highlights co-founder Jack Dorsey-led Twitter's recent push into video, an area where it lags Facebook and Google's YouTube, and efforts to revive stalled user growth. In another move, Twitter will start allowing video publishers to make money out of their content on Vine, its video streaming service. Vine will use Twitter's Amplify Open program, which runs ads before a video starts playing. Twitter previously restricted videos to 30 seconds. The new 140-second video limit also applies to Vine, which previously had a six-second limit. Twitter also launched "Twitter Engage," a mobile app that allows users with a large number of followers to track their posts and see what their fans are tweeting about. REUTERS

Subway riders flee train after confusing fireworks for gunshots

Witnesses said they heard "gun" yelled as commuters stampeded from the station.

CRISTABELLE TUMOLA

Straphangers fled a Manhattan subway station Tuesday morning in what police described as a moment of "mass hysteria" after fireworks were reportedly mistaken for gunshots.

The incident happened at the Central Park North-110th Street subway station in Harlem at about 9 a.m., and was sparked after riders thought a gun had been fired on a 2 train, NBC4 reported.

According to CBS3, someone may have said something like "gun" or "shots fired" as a fight broke out between two people.

Witnesses at the station said they heard "run, run, " as commuters stampeded to safety, some even leaving shoes behind.

Though some passengers believe they heard gunshots, police said shorty after the incident that they didn't believe there was ever a gun and that shots were never fired, calling the chaos an "incidence of mass hysteria," according to NBC4.

Photos and video of the incident can be found at Metro.us. @NATASHASALFORD/TWITTER

"One thing is that you see it on TV, and then another is, like, when it happens to you, it's, like, super scarier. You don't even know what to do."

Rolin

It was later reported that fireworks set off during the fight on the train, between two women, was what caused the hysteria.

"[Two women] were arguing," Billy Mitchell, told the New York Post. "I was about to enter the train [and] somebody let off two firecrackers. It was two kids, they lit off firecrackers and everybody ran. The firecracker sounded like a gunshot … So people panicked and they pushed each other. They trampled on everyone and a lot of people got injured."

There were multiple reports of injuries, with several people taken to the hosptial. The injuries, however, were minor.

"As soon as the door opened … people started running out of the train. I just started running with them," Lessley Rolin told CBS3.

Tuesday's scare comes just over a week after the worst mass shooting in U.S. history left 49 people dead and more than 50 injured in Orlando, Florida. Following the attack, the NYPD said it was stepping up security, though there was no evidence of a credible threat to New York City.

"One thing is that you see it on TV, and then another is, like, when it happens to you, it's, like, super scarier," Rolin said. "You don't even know what to do."

Three arrested with loaded guns, body armor during traffic stop at Holland Tunnel

Authorities say suspects are "gun enthusiasts" who may have been traveling to help a woman, not suspected of planning attack.

ANGY ALTAMIRANO

A trio of "gun enthusiasts," as described by authorities, were arrested Tuesday morning as they attempted to make the drive through the Holland Tunnel with loaded guns, magazines, ammo, knives and body armor.

The three suspects — two men in their 50s and a woman in her 20s — were stopped around 8 a.m. by police on the New Jersey side of the tunnel, according to PIX11 New York.

According to NBC4 New York, the car the suspects were in was a brightly colored Dodge utility vehicle with a decals around the vehicle for Higher Ground Tactical — a gun range and shop in Emmaus, Pennsylvania.

Police found multiple weapons, including assault rifles and handguns — some of which were loaded — knives, a camouflage helmet and ballistic vests, NBC4 reported.

Under the New York Safe Act, signed into law in 2013, "high-capacity magazines" that hold more than 10 rounds are illegal, as are semiautomatic assault-style rifles.

In New Jersey, assault-style rifles are illegal, as are magazines holding more than 15 rounds.

New Jersey state law also prohibits loaded weapons in vehicles and requires all guns to be transported unloaded in a locked container.

The confiscated items, as reported by NBC4. PROVIDED

Authorities also found drugs inside the vehicle, NBC4 reported, and one of the suspects allegedly told police that they were on their way to Queens to help "save a friend who is on heroin and being held against her will."

Law enforcement officials told NBC4 that the suspects — who may be from Pennsylvania — are "so-called gun enthusiasts" and are not suspected of having ties to terrorists or planning an attack.

Police said that the suspects drove off in a gray van.

The suspects wore dark-colored or gray hoodies with similarly colored pants and gloves and sneakers, according to officials.

The dog was found with severe open wounds and third-degree burns covering its back, police said.

Police transported the dog to the ASPCA for treatment.

Cornell Tech campus showcasing energy-efficient residential tower

Developer following Passive House standards, which drastically reduce energy consumption, heating and cooling costs.

As the Cornell Tech campus begins to take shape on Roosevelt Island, one residential tower — which will house graduate students and faculty — is stacking up as the first of its kind in the country.

On Tuesday morning Cornell Tech and developer Hudson Companies offered a first look into the Passive House residential tower that will stand at 270 feet tall and house about 350 residential units on the brand-new campus.

The building is the first Passive House high-rise tower in the country — and the tallest in the world. Passive House is a strict international building standard — usually used abroad for one-family homes — that aims to drastically reduce energy consumption while creating a healthier and more comfortable living environment.

Passive House buildings tend to use about 70 percent less energy than usual building standards. The Cornell Tech tower will not only be energy efficient, it will also feature a ventilation system that brings fresh air into the units, along with offering residents individual control of heating and cooling.

"It's really our responsibility to share this building with architects, developers and the engineering community all over the world so that they can duplicate what we are learning here," said Deborah Moelis, architect from Handel Architects, which designed the tower. "We try and think of ourselves as almost the snow plow, that we are plowing away for everybody to come behind us a little bit easier."

The 26-floor residential building will feature a mixture of studios and one- to three-bedroom apartments that all come furnished and with built-in Wi-Fi.

On the top floor of the tower, residents will be able to enjoy a 10,600-square-foot amenity space called The River Room with windows overlooking the Manhattan skyline and East River. The space is expected to feature a small kitchenette, library, outdoor terrace, green roof and common area for students to get together.

According to Arianna Rosenberg of Hudson Companies, which developed the building along with Related Companies, the Passive House building is expected to fit into the campus, which aims to be innovate and sustainable.

"We were really excited about this challenge because the university is all about innovation and technology and we felt like bringing this type of sustainability to the residential sector would be really exciting and that this building could be a focal point to move the needle on how we develop and build buildings in this city," Rosenberg said.

The Cornell Tech campus, once completed, is expected to offer over 2 million square feet of space in various buildings.

The first phase of the project — which is set to open in 2017 — will include the opening of the primary academic building with solar panels on its roof; a co-location building which Cornell will use a majority of the space for academic purposes, and space leased to tech tenants; a utility plant which serves all the electrical needs for the campus; a possible hotel; and the Passive House residential tower.

Brooklyn actress locked up for scuffle over Confederate flag in S.C.

Lydia Folckomer and Paul Folckomer PROVIDED

A young Brooklyn actress, who got into an altercation with South Carolina secessionists over their Confederate flag display, is now facing criminal charges for actions that in New York City might have gotten her a medal.

Lydia Folckomer, 22, and her father, Paul Folckomer, 50, were arrested in Charleston, South Carolina, on Saturday afternoon after Lydia broke two miniature Confederate flags off a parked truck and ran away with them, the Post and Courier reported.

The flags belonged to members of the South Carolina Secessionist Party, who raise the Confederate flag weekly during a ceremony at the Charleston battery.

Folckomer now faces charges of malicious injury to real property. Her father, of Brevard, North Carolina, was charged with simple assault for blocking and grabbing James Bessenger, 27, the founder of the South Carolina Seccesionist Party, when he tried to chase Lydia down for stealing the flags, according to the newspaper.

Lydia told police "she grabbed the flags because they upset her," the Post and Courier reported, while Paul said "he grabbed Bessenger to keep him from chasing his daughter."

The two reportedly were in jail overnight and were released on Sunday.

"The moral of the story? Make the Yankees pay for their crimes when they come to our state, break our laws and attempt to dishonor our ancestors," the Secessionist Party wrote on its Facebook in a now-deleted post.

According to a cached version of her Twitter account, which along with her other social media accounts has been deactivated as conservative and Southern blogs spread the story of the scuffle, Lydia Folckomer is an actor, writer, producer and comedian.

She expressed liberal sentiments on her Twitter, writing in a pinned tweet, "Finding out the guy you like is a Republican feels like when Liesl from 'The Sound of Music' finds out Rolf is a Nazi."

Meanwhile, Secessionist Party members and their supporters have circulated the story of the Folckomers widely online.

"Both victims testified at the bond hearing, expressing their disgust with people from out of state coming into South Carolina, damaging private property and attacking our people," the Seccessionist Party wrote on Facebook.

A hearing for the Folckomers is scheduled for July 22 at Charleston City Courthouse.

Pro-confederate flag activists plan to attend.

"The Secessionist Party is asking that all available members, supporters and flaggers come to the courthouse on that date to show their support, flags in hand," the Secessionist Party wrote on Facebook.

NYC money manager under investigation found dead in apparent suicide

Sanjay Valvani, 44, a partner at Visium Asset Management, had been charged last week with insider trading.

Sanjay Valvani, a hedge fund manager at Visium Asset Management LP who was charged last week with insider trading, has been found dead in an apparent suicide, police said on Tuesday.

Valvani, 44, was discovered by his wife on Monday evening at his Brooklyn home with a wound to his neck, a New York Police Department spokeswoman said.

A suicide note and a knife were recovered, she added.

The death marked a stunning turn in one of the U.S. government's biggest insider trading cases.

Valvani's lawyers, Barry Berke and Eric Tirschwell, called his death a "horrible tragedy that is difficult to comprehend."

"We hope for the sake of his family and his memory that it will not be forgotten that the charges against him were only unproven accusations and he had always maintained his innocence," they added.

A spokesman for Manhattan U.S. Attorney Preet Bharara, whose office brought the case, declined comment.

Valvani was arrested last Wednesday and charged with fraudulently making $25 million by getting advanced information about U.S. Food and Drug Administration approvals of generic drug applications.

Prosecutors said the inside information was provided by Gordon Johnston, a consultant and former employee at the FDA, who got tips from a friend, who still works at the agency.

Valvani passed some of the tips to Christopher Plaford, then a Visium portfolio manager, who made his own illegal trades, prosecutors said.

Both Johnston and Plaford secretly pleaded guilty earlier this month and agreed to cooperate in the case against Valvani.

He pleaded not guilty to charges including securities fraud, wire fraud and conspiracy and had been free on $5 million bond.

Valvani had been a partner at Visium Asset Management and was instrumental in building it with founder Jacob Gottlieb into an $8 billion firm that counted some of the country's biggest pension funds as clients.

Last Friday, Gottlieb told investors that it was impossible to continue managing the firm because of the negative impact from the publicity surrounding Valvani's arrest and substantial investor withdrawals.

Gottlieb wrote to clients that one of the firm's portfolios is being sold to AllianceBernstein and that the Balanced Fund, where Valvani worked, was being shut down.

"We mourn the tragic loss of Sanjay, a devoted father, husband and friend. Our thoughts are with his family during this difficult time," Gottlieb said in a statement on Tuesday. REUTERS

"We hope for the sake of his family and his memory that it will not be forgotten that the charges against him were only unproven accusations and he had always maintained his innocence."

Obama: US senators 'failed the American people' on gun control

Democrats' efforts to pass a broader prohibition failed.

The White House accused U.S. senators of a "shameful display of cowardice" on Tuesday and said they failed the American people by not advancing any gun control measures after the nation's largest mass shooting in Orlando, Florida, last week.

"Gun violence requires more than moments of silence," President Barack Obama said on Twitter. "It requires action. In failing that test, the Senate failed the American people."

Earlier, White House spokesman Josh Earnest appeared on morning television news shows excoriating the Senate for rejecting on Monday four gun bills aimed at keeping firearms away from people with suspected ties to militants.

"What we saw last night on the floor of the United States Senate was a shameful display of cowardice," Earnest said on MSNBC.

After Monday's votes, the Senate turned away from gun control, at least temporarily, to debate a different tactic for battling domestic attacks that could be inspired by Islamic State and other foreign militant groups.

Senators were aiming to vote by Wednesday on legislation by Sen. John McCain of Arizona expanding the Federal Bureau of Investigation's ability to conduct secret surveillance in counter-terrorism investigations.

"This week we'll have the opportunity to strengthen our ability to combat lone wolf terrorists and connect the dots so we are better able to prevent terrorist attacks in the United States" such as the Orlando massacre, Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell said.

Activists protest at the entrance of the National Rifle Association on Tuesday in Fairfax, Virginia, to honor the 49 people recently killed at the Pulse nightclub, in Orlando, Florida, and calling for a ban on assult weapons. REUTERS

Republican Sen. Susan Collins of Maine was trying to keep gun control attempts alive. She was expected on Tuesday to introduce a measure that would curb weapons sales to people on a narrow terrorism watch list.

It was not yet clear whether Collins' plan would draw significant bipartisan support or whether McConnell would even schedule a vote on her legislation, which likely would draw opposition from the National Rifle Association, a close ally of many Republican lawmakers.

The NRA has worked hard to defeat gun control measures, including attempts in the wake of mass shootings such as the one in Orlando.

Gun control groups, meanwhile, promised to intensify their push for legislative action, but not just in Washington.

Shannon Watts, founder of Moms Demand Action for Gun Sense in America, said her group, besides supporting pro-gun control candidates for the U.S. Congress, would work to strengthen gun sale background check laws "state by state until Congress acts," states including Maine and Nevada.

"If the NRA and their lapdogs in the Senate thought moms would feel dispirited and back down they are sorely mistaken," Watts told reporters in a teleconference. REUTERS

NJ Gov. Christie proposes flat rate for education funding

The amount of state aid school districts receive now varies widely, with some getting less than $3,000 per pupil and others getting as much as $28,000.

Chris Christie GETTY IMAGES

New Jersey Gov. Chris Christie on Tuesday proposed overhauling the state's education funding formula to provide all public school districts with a flat rate of $6,599 per student.

Calling it his "Fairness Formula" in policy statements on Tuesday, Christie said aid for special needs students would continue even with any potential formula change.

Schools are funded through property taxes, which in New Jersey are some of the highest in the nation because of the state's "unaffordable and broken school funding formula propped up by special interests and misguided Supreme Court precedent," Christie said in a statement.

Christie said he would traverse the state this summer to talk about the proposal.

Such a change would be an uphill battle, as it would need approval from a Democrat-led legislature that has already rejected previous education formula changes from Christie, a Republican.

"Gov. Christie's idea is unconstitutional and harmful to our most vulnerable children," Assembly Speaker Vincent Prieto said in a statement on Tuesday, adding that Christie still hasn't fully funded schools under the existing formula.

Currently, poorer districts receive more state aid under a formula based on a 1990 New Jersey Supreme Court decision called Abbott v. Burke II, which ruled the state's education funding was unfair and that low-income "Abbott districts" must be funded on par with wealthier ones. REUTERS

Trump shrugs off campaign funding lag, citing personal wealth

Donald Trump REUTERS

Republican presidential candidate Donald Trump dismissed a huge fundraising gap between him and Democratic rival Hillary Clinton on Tuesday, saying he could always tap into his personal wealth if he needed more cash for the campaign.

The New York real estate magnate lagged far behind Clinton in the campaign money stakes in May, raising only $3.1 million to her $26 million, according to federal disclosures filed late on Monday. Trump's campaign began June with $1.29 million in cash, well-behind Clinton's $42 million war chest.

The figures underscore the huge cash advantage Clinton is hoping to enjoy leading into the Nov. 8 presidential election, one that could allow her a large staff and millions of dollars of television and digital ads in battleground states.

But Trump has spent much of the race so far breaking the mold of a traditional campaign, defeating a crowded field of primary opponents who vastly outspent him in ads and staff.

"If need be, there could be unlimited 'cash on hand' as I would put up my own money," Trump said in a statement, adding that he had already spent over $50 million on his bid for the White House. "Our campaign is leaner and more efficient, like our government should be." REUTERS

Amazon jaguar shot dead at Olympic torch ceremony

The jaguar is a nearly threatened species that has already been wiped out in Uruguay and El Salvador, according to the International Union for Conservation of Nature.

A jaguar featured at an Olympic torch ceremony was shot dead by a soldier shortly after the event in the Brazilian Amazon city of Manaus as the animal escaped from its handlers, an army statement said.

The jaguar was killed Monday at a zoo attached to a military training center, when a soldier fired a single pistol shot after the animal, despite being tranquilized, approached the soldier, the army said.

"We made a mistake in permitting the Olympic torch, a symbol of peace and unity, to be exhibited alongside a chained wild animal. This image goes against our beliefs and our values," the local organizing committee Rio 2016 said in a statement, adding "We guarantee that there will be no more such incidents at Rio 2016."

A smiling yellow jaguar known as Ginga is the mascot of the Brazilian Olympic team.

The shooting caused uproar among animal rights groups, which questioned why the animal was involved in the Olympic event.

"When will people (and institutions) stop with this sick need to show power and control by confining, taming and showcasing wild animals?" the Rio de Janeiro-based animal rights group Animal Freedom Union said on its Facebook page. REUTERS

US unveils new rules on small, low-altitude drones

The White House says unmanned aircraft could lead to $82 billion in economic growth by 2025 and support up to 100,000 jobs. GETTY IMAGES

The Obama administration unveiled landmark rules on Tuesday that will open the skies for low-level small drones for education and research purposes, but unmanned commercial aircraft deliveries from companies like Amazon.com and Alphabet Inc. will require separate regulation.

The head of the Federal Aviation Administration, Michael Huerta, declined to offer a timetable on when those separate rules would be written. Until now, commercial drone operations had been illegal in the United States without specific FAA permission.

Drone flights will be approved for agriculture, research and development, educational and academic use, as well as powerline, pipeline and antenna inspections. They also include aiding certain rescue operations, bridge inspections, aerial photography and wildlife nesting area evaluations.

The new rules that take effect in late August allow drones that weigh less than 55 pounds and fly up to 400 feet high and 100 mph, but only within sight of an operator and not over people.

Drones will not be allowed to fly at night unless they have special lighting and must stay at least five miles away from airports.

Operators must be at least 16 and have a remote pilot certificate and must report to the FAA of any drone that results in serious injuries or property damage.

"As this new technology continues to grow and develop, we want to make sure we strike the right balance between innovation and safety," said Transportation Secretary Anthony Foxx on a call with reporters.

The rules may still boost drone manufacturers such as SZ DJI Technology Co. and PrecisionHawk.

Would You Like Instant Proof?

If you want instant proof - you can just look at all all the actual patient testimonials we have included. These patients were once skeptical just like you... and are now either pain free... or eliminated quite a bit of their pain.

Here's the most important thing: Many said they saw this information SEVERAL times before finally deciding to take action and give us a call. As you can see - they are happy they did.

Once crippled with knee pain, they are playing golf again, dancing again, riding bikes again and going for long walks again.

But We Do Get
One Very Common Complaint

And it is: "I wish I started this treatment much sooner." Let's be very clear about this. Time is the most precious thing. There is no way to slow it down - or get any back once it 's gone.

All the more reason for you to not suffer even one more second than you have to. Missing life suffering in pain is a tragedy. Isn't it time for you to get rid of your knee pain and start living the life you want and deserve?

And please understand this: One of the keys to success in medicine is early diagnosis and treatment. Like many diseases, arthritis only gets worse over time. The longer you wait - the more damage to your knee and eventually- the more pain. If you wait "past the point of no return", the entire knee joint can be degenerated and your ONLY option will be total knee replacement.

If you are suffering with knee arthritis pain, here is why you should act NOW:

When you have arthritis, you suffer a decrease in the lubricating fluids in your knee. In other words, your knee joints basically "dries up." The lubricating fluid that decreases is called "synovial fluid". Pharmaceutical companies can now make synovial fluid-like compounds that... during treatments... doctors precisely and directly apply these gel-like medicines into the knee joint. This helps replace the lubricating fluid to the knee joint - allowing it to move more freely and smoothly and often decreasing or even eliminating pain.

In fact, by using Precision Arthritis Targeting Technology, NY Pain MD doctors are able to double confirm the precise placement of the arthritis medicines used. This is to help ensure patients get the best possible results.

Another Important Factor

Viscosupplementation medications also come in several different brands and chemical make-ups. Just like all medications, some people respond better to some than others. While many doctors only use one type or brands, the experts at NY Pain MD use several and great effort is taken to figure out which is best for YOU.

What To Do Next If You Are In Pain

I just go right to the golf course. I'm able to keep up with these guys who walk - I'm right next to them! My guys on the golf course would say Hey, look at this he doesn't need us to put the ball up any more.

When I'm playing on the course I don't have any pain any more I don't have any aches and pain.

I'm out there playing!

"If e el like a new woman"

I came to the clinic because I was not sleeping at night. My leg was pounding. There were times when I sat too long the knee would tighten up. I would get in pain and I would be miserable and I would have it for the whole night. After the treatment I goof around with my grandchildren. I feel like a new woman. It's great. I know I don't have to sit on the couch and be in pain and I can just pick up and get dressed and go out. It was so gentle.

It got to the point where I couldn't stand up for a period of time and I knew something had to be done about it. You walk into the doctors office - he puts your leg in a machine - he shows you where he is going to do the procedure and before you know it... it's done and you're outta there. Now I'm able to take out my bicycle a couple of the guys and myself we took a couple of rides out in the woods and we had a good time and I couldn't do that for years and now I'm able to do it again.

The pain was excruciating like 24/7. Nothing I took over-the-counter would work so I knew it was something more serious. When I saw that my condition was not getting any better, I decided to do something about it and I immediately made an appointment - I went and started treatment. The feeling of getting back to my dancing and my mobility is indescribable. I feel like a new woman - It's amazing.

"I am ecstatic with the results of this procedure"

One day, as I was running, my knee got tighter and tighter. I had to stop and just walk home. They x-rayed me and said I was a candidate for it. You sit there for about 2-3 minutes and then you are up and walking out the door. I am ecstatic with the results of this procedure because I could not run just weeks before. I ran my race without any issues. I felt good - it just opened a door that was closing.

"I Can Finally Live My Life"

Prior the the relief center I was taking (9;30) and I was becoming addicted to it and it was damaging my health. Since the treatment, I've been able to be less dependent on them. I don't feel helpless anymore. Since going through the procedure I can finally live. I can finally live my life.

THOUSANDS of knee arthritis sufferers flock for this advanced medical treatment - How they relieved pain while so many continue to suffer

Knee Arthritis Pain: The Untold Story

Why patients come from all over the Tri-State area for this knee arthritis pain treatment and why waiting can decrease your chance to live a pain free. life again

By Matt Edgar - America's Health Writer

NY Pain MD, a center for Non-Surgical Medical Relief For Spine And Joint Pain Relief, is a medical clinic with multiple locations in New York City that has treated thousands of knee arthritis patients. Here is what every knee arthritis sufferer should know about the best treatments and options available today. And why waiting can drastically decrease your chances to live a pain free life again.

The information you are about to read can possibly save you from years and years of agonizing knee pain. It might even keep you from getting total knee replacement surgery. Please pay careful attention.

What you are about to read is a cutting-edge medical treatment... but it is NOT what it appears to be at first glance. In fact, I'm going to have to ask for a bit of patience from you if you have already unsuccessfully tried any (or many) other knee arthritis pain treatments.

You see, many knee arthritis sufferers had already tried what seemed to be similar treatments to what we are going to talk about and did not get the results they wanted. But I assure you there is something VERY DIFFERENT about the technology and the way we do this treatment that can possibly make it much more effective for many … and it often gets results when many others have failed.

This is why patients come from all over the tri-state area and beyond to have their knee arthritis pain treated here.

What Results Can Be Expected?

Like all medical treatments, the results vary and can not be predicted. In fact, it is impossible to predict results and there are no statistics proving what the "average" patients can expect. Everyone is individual and gets individual results - so we never tell anyone to expect the same results as any of our other patients. But to be 100% clear - many knee arthritis sufferers get dramatic results. It is not uncommon for patients to either postpone knee replacement surgery for years .. or even permanently cancel it.

What Are Treatments Like?

Treatments are simple, fast and virtually painless. The total time of the procedure itself is only 10 minutes and most say it is like getting a flu shot. You walk out of the clinic just minutes after your procedure.

But There Is A BIG Problem

The key is the treatment must be EXTREMELY PRECISE. Often ignored by many other clinics, if the procedure is just slightly off, the medication will not get into the knee joint and the treatment will not work.

That's why the experts at NY Pain MD use what they call "Precision Arthritis Targeting Technology" or P.A.T.T. so they can see the medicine going directly into the knee joint - in live motion- during the treatment.

Research shows that doctors performing procedures without Precision Arthritis Targeting can miss the joint as much as 30% of the time. If you had viscosupplementation (or Stem Cells or PRP) without the exactness of P.A.T.T. and did not get good results - this may

"I cannot ask for better results"

Dr. Stanley Weiner, M.D. - Surgeon

I had (replacement) surgery scheduled last year. Three months before I made an appointment .... I was amazed at the ease with which I was evaluated and the treatment schedule implemented. The results I had at NY Pain MD were outstanding. I cannot ask for better results. After the treatment I was able to go back to work with no discomfort at all. They use a digital monitor to locate the space that they use the treatment for and it's .. it's like exact science. Dr. Stanley Weiner MD

"Hey this feels terrific"

I was diagnosed bone on bone about 2 years ago I went to see an Orthopedic Surgeon and he said my knees were shot and I need to get them replaced. The NY Pain guys said after looking at x-rays they could help. That procedure is so basic so simple so quick in 15 minutes you are in and out. When I got up out of the chair I stood up and I said, "Hey this feels terrific."

"I don't have any pain any more"

After I had the treatments .. the last tuneup ..

"I feel like a new woman -It's amazing."

BRIEF

Clinton warns of a 'Trump recession' in speech on economy
Hillary Clinton said if Donald Trump wins the White House, it will be a disaster for the nation's economy, warning that "the king of debt" would cause a "Trump recession."

"Now I don't say this because of typical political disagreements — liberals and conservatives say Trump's ideas would be disastrous," Clinton said. "Economists on the right, the left and the center all agree Trump would throw us back into recession."

Clinton's speech in Columbus, Ohio, was the second in which she has argued the wealthy businessman is "temperamentally unfit" to lead the country. The first was on foreign relations and national security.

She said Trump's tax plan would benefit the rich over working families, that his promise to toss out trade deals would lead to trade wars, and criticized his business credentials. REUTERS

Justice Dept. opposes new Obama proposal on Gitmo

Obama has vowed to close the prison on his watch. But while he has overseen the release of some 160 men from the prison, the facility still holds 80 detainees.

A detainee walks through the recreation yard at the detention center for "enemy combatants" in Guantanamo Bay, Cuba. GETTY IMAGES

President Barack Obama is again facing dissent from within his administration — this time from Attorney General Loretta Lynch — over his plans to shutter the Guantanamo Bay military prison, according to senior administration officials.

Lynch, a former federal prosecutor whom Obama appointed to head the Justice Department two years ago, is opposing a White House-backed proposal that would allow Guantanamo Bay prisoners to plead guilty to terrorism charges in federal court by videoconference, the officials said.

Over the past three months, Lynch has twice intervened to block administration proposals on the issue, objecting that they would violate longstanding rules of criminal-justice procedure.

In the first case, her last-minute opposition derailed a White House-initiated legislative proposal to allow video guilty pleas after nearly two months of interagency negotiations and law drafting. In the second case, Lynch blocked the administration from publicly supporting a Senate proposal to legalize video guilty pleas.

White House officials confirmed that President Obama supports the proposal. But the president declined to overrule objections from Lynch, the administration's top law-enforcement official.

"There were some frustrations," said a White House official who spoke on condition of anonymity. "The top lawyer in the land has weighed in, and that was the DOJ's purview to do that."

If enacted into law, the Obama-backed plan would allow detained terrorism suspects who plead guilty to serve their sentences in a third-country prison, without setting foot on U.S. soil. The plan would thus sidestep a congressional ban on transferring detainees to the United States, which has left dozens of prisoners in long-term judicial limbo in Guantanamo, the American military enclave in Cuba.

The video plea plan has broad backing within the administration, including from senior State Department and Pentagon officials. A Defense Department spokesman declined to comment. REUTERS

Yikes: Iggy Azalea kicks Nick Young's stuff to the curb

It's safe to say that Lakers point guard Nick Young and Australian rapper Iggy Azalea have officially called off their wedding. But at least the rapper didn't tattoo his name on her fingers this time, like she did with her ex-boyfriend A$AP Rocky.

So here's a recap: Young's teammate D'Angelo Russell leaked a very personal clip on YouTube. The video featured Young confessing to cheating on Azalea with another woman. We're guessing that Russell and Young aren't on the best of terms.

The "Black Widow" singer has responded to numerous fans on Twitter regarding the scandal. Some fans even tweeted that they have more evidence of Young cheating, but they're holding off on releasing it.

A couple months ago, Azalea responded to fan @Drowningforigy who tweeted, "I'll call a U-Haul and we can have his s outta there in 10 min...just say the words boo!" Azalea's reply was polite, yet thankful, "lol, errrr...nick and i are good babe."

As of this morning, Iggy Igz took her fan's advice and decided to clean out her closet, or, rather, Young's closet, removing chairs, a bike and several boxes from her Los Angeles home and relocating them to the driveway. She even had her ex-fiance's car — a 1962 blue Chevy Impala she bought for him for Christmas — towed away.

John Legend and Chrissy Teigen just being adorable

John Legend and Chrissy Teigen are at it again! After the Senate rejected four gun-control laws Monday night, the couple took to their usual soapbox on Twitter.

Legend urged fans to vote in November and showed no signs of backing down when followers began to criticize.

Vocal Trump-hater Teigen poked fun at the GOP by tweeting, "@johnlegend no john. My right to own 7 AR-15's is more important than your "COMFORT" used 2 respect u! Stick to music unfollow#."

After a heated back and forth debate, a fan asked if the two were next to each other while it was happening. To which the couple responded, "maybe" and posted this photo. Guess a couple that tweets together stays together?

Beyonce shows off family vacay

Beyonce is not done showing us how to turn lemons into lemonade. Queen Bey, Jay Z and the heiress of American pop culture, 4-year-old Blue Ivy, started summer with a vacation to Hawaii, sharing the perfect #summergoals images on beyonce.com.

While we've been busy wildly speculating on "Lemonade"-inspired relationship drama, Beyonce has clearly been righting her kingdom with summer crowns (of flowers and lemons, of course) and beachside strolls in parade.

That's the literal paradise of Hawaii, and the figurative one of her family — it's significant that many of the shots portray a happy family, include Blue, whom the couple have zealously shielded until now. "What drama?" the images say. "Life is what you make it." Take notes, people.

Selma Blair has midflight meltdown, hospitalized

Actress Selma Blair was en route from Cancun, Mexico, to Los Angeles with her 4-year-old son, Arthur Saint, and his father, Jason Bleick, Monday when she began to behave erratically. Sources from the flight told TMZ the 43-year-old actress began to cry and say, "He burns my private parts. He won't let me eat or drink. He beats me. He's going to kill me."

Witnesses told the website that Blair was drinking wine in first class and flight staff searched her bag for any medications she may have mixed. People Magazine's sources said it appeared that Blair had taken an unknown "combination of prescription medication with alcohol."

Blair had been on vacation with ex-boyfriend Bleick and their son to celebrate Father's Day at the Hard Rock Hotel Riviera Maya. Sources for Us Weekly said the "American Crime Story" star "seemed happy and healthy all weekend." The actress was removed from the flight, which was met by paramedics at LAX, and taken to an area hospital.

Life changes defined Ladyhawke's newest album, "Wild Things." GETTY IMAGES

Cooler and wiser than ever

Ladyhawke brings fans on her new journey with "Wild Things."

BRIAN BURNS
@MetroNewYork
letters@metro.us

Either you already know who Ladyhawke is or you should know who Ladyhawke is. There is no acceptable in-between. After four years, the indie rocker is back on the scene with "Wild Things," her gutsy, synth-driven third studio LP, which dropped from Polyvinyl Records on June 3.

The 36-year-old New Zealander born Phillipa "Pip" Brown is currently on tour to support the release, and her live show reflects just how much she's changed over the past few years. Ladyhawke chats with us recently about getting married, getting sober and her decision to make music that reflected her happier state of being.

With "Wild Things" out earlier this month, what's been your favorite part about getting new music out into the world?
Even after I finished recording all the material, it took another year to be released. It was such a massive release for me to just get it out into the world. It's a huge weight off my shoulders. I'm just desperate for people to hear it and hear the journey I've been on.

What inspired you this time around?
I made a lot of massive changes to get to the point where I could write "Wild Things." To stop drinking was a conscious decision to start feeling better. I've been feeling terrible for quite a long time, and I didn't want it to come out in my music. After really working hard on myself and beginning to feel great, the album came pretty quickly.

How much of an inspiration did getting married have on the album?
I finished the record before I got married [to New Zealand actress, Madeleine Sami] but the relationship itself was definitely an inspiration for the material. I've moved all over the world and haven't been able to have many relationships. Constantly going from place to place, you know? But we met in 2009 and made an agreement that we'd have to put in the work 'cause we thought it was worth it.

What would you say are the best and worst aspects of going on tour?
Finding cool restaurants in different cities and getting the chance to get together with everybody and have a gorgeous meal is always pretty great. I think some of the worst parts of touring is just the distance from your loved ones. And not having any time to get ill. And if you do get ill, which happens often, you're kind of screwed.

For you, what makes a great audience?
I just like looking at people smile. I hate to see people standing there with their arms crossed. They have no idea how it makes you feel. Blank expressions on their face? Horrible! People who are smiling and having a good time, that's what I look for.

The singer-songwriter likens his new release to good old-fashioned vinyl. PROVIDED

Ray LaMontagne takes a dreamy step forward with 'Ouroboros'

"It all just sort of happened half out of sleep."

CHRIS LEO PALERMINO
letters@metro.us

The way Ray LaMontagne's latest record, "Ouroboros," came together is nearly as evocative and hazy as the music itself. Last year, the 42-year-old singer-songwriter was having trouble figuring out how the melodies and song ideas that he had been working on should come together as an album. He ended up finding his answer in one night of fitful slumber.

"It all just sort of happened half out of sleep," says LaMontagne. "I rehearsed it from my excerpts and all of the pieces start to fit together and I saw how it could make — rather than a batch of 10 songs, it wasn't about songs. Simplistically, it was one song."

LaMontagne split the album into two parts to evoke imagery of a vinyl record with two sides.

"Nothing will ever sound better than vinyl," he says. "That's just all there is to it. But [having two parts] also gives you a chance to have a change of scene — have the curtains close and reopen again."

The result is a lush record that spans the gamut from haunting folk ("Homecoming") to windy curls of psychedelia ("Hey, No Pressure").

Through and through, it's apparent that "Ouroboros" is an LP best listened to in full. "The first side [of the record] is pulling away from a grounded emotional place into sort of chaos," he says. "Then the second side is moving back toward a place of being grounded."

And popular appeal certainly played little part in the making of the album, which was produced by Jim James of My Morning Jacket.

"If it leaks its way into people's lives over the next hundred years, that's all you can hope for," says LaMontagne. "That's it. I love the art form. I'm trying to get better at it. I'm trying to do better work all the time."

The singer-songwriter best known for folk crooners like "Let It Be Me" and "Trouble" hasn't completely separated from his musical past, though. In concert, expect to hear a selection of older fan favorites and "Ouroboros" in full, as well as songs from 2014's "Supernova." LaMontagne adds, "The live show is just fun."

If 'That's Not Tango,' then what is?

Leave it to a New Yorker to give tango a sensational new spin.

When Astor Piazzolla burst onto the music scene in the mid-20th century, it was with a style that blended his native Argentine tango with his upbringing in the cultural melting pot of NYC.

The composer and musician infusion of jazz and classical styles gave rise to its own genre: nuevo tango. It was so different from traditional tango that a naysayer once famously quipped to Piazzolla, "That's not tango," hence the title of the new production based on his career, "That's Not Tango — Astor Piazzolla, A Life in Music," coming to The SubCulture for five performances beginning June 22.

"Piazzolla didn't write music for dance; he said he made it to be listened to," says co-creator Lesley Karsten. "He had bigger ideas for the form."

New York City-based Karsten, a documentary filmmaker, pianist and singer, became a Piazzolla fan some 20 years ago, not long after his death in 1992.

"He lived next door to a synagogue and heard klezmer," she explains of his life in Lower Manhattan in the 1920s. "He heard the jazz coming out of Harlem, he heard his father's tango records, and later when he heard a pianist playing Bach it enraptured him. He created music that was distinctly his, yet it is so universal in its appeal."

Perhaps that's why Piazzolla's music has yet to become a thing of the past. Musicians from jazz great Gerry Mulligan to cellist Yo-Yo Ma have performed Piazzolla's compositions, and YouTube clips of his performances have been played over 10 million times.

In keeping with Piazzolla's style, "This Is Not Tango" is neither a musical nor a biography but a fusion that blends play-like stretches interspersed with performances by JP Jofre — who, like Piazzolla, is a master bandoneón (a square-built button accordion) player — pianist Brandt Fredriksen and Latin Grammy-winning violinist Nick Danielson.

The tango dance style is described as a conversation between a man and a woman, hence its passionate back-and-forth "discourse." This plays into an unexpected element of "That's Not Tango" — Karsten herself stars a gender-swapped Piazzolla.

"What I was really writing about was the androgyny of the soul," explains Karsten. "The soul isn't male or female, how can it be? Organically, not by design, it does fit with the current gender identity conversation."

In his lifetime, Piazzolla himself also transcended conformity: The son of Italian immigrants grew up speaking English, not Spanish, the language of his birthplace. "His music is just so extraordinarily rich," enthuses Karsten. "It's an amalgam of all that it is to be human."

Dermot Mulroney plays a wealthy man married to a femme fatale (Isabel Lucas) in "Careful What You Wish For." STARZ

Dermot Mulroney makes sweet music

The actor talks about the Nick Jonas thriller "Careful What You Wish For" and being a pro cellist.

MATT PRIGGE
matt.prigge@metro.us

Dermot Mulroney isn't the type of actor you bombard with questions. He likes to take it easy and let the chat go where it goes. We're talking about "Careful What You Wish For," an old-school thriller starring Nick Jonas as a kid who gets involved with a femme fatale (Isabel Lucas), who has a wealthy, abusive husband (played by Mulroney). But it takes us and the "My Best Friend's Wedding" alum awhile to get there, as we end up talking about, among other things, his sideline as a professional cellist.

On top of being an actor you're also a cellist, which is not something everyone knows.
I've been doing that my whole life. I was a top cellist through high school and college. Now I play on the occasional scoring session for these big blockbuster movies. I just did a five-day session on "Star Trek Beyond." How bizarre is that?

It must be strange to be on that side of movies.
It's its own world. Underappreciated. It's this process of writing, arranging and orchestrating beautiful music. It's all brand-new sounding. No one's ever played it before. And I'm sitting there with the best cellists, these award-winning brass players, and get to work with them at my skill level, which is merely sufficient. I definitely don't stand out. [Laughs]

And there you are, someone whose name is in the opening credits of movies in which you acted.
You don't get a lot of people patting you on the back, saying, "Great job, man! That take was perfect!" like they do on movie sets. I'm like the No. 11 cellist. Those guys don't get a lot of glory. [Laughs] I have an incredible amount of respect for people who've learned to play a musical instrument, all the practicing. Even a really expert actor might not have practiced as much as a French horn player. That's about the hardest instrument to play.

You get to do both on "Mozart in the Jungle." You popped up on the second season and are coming back for the third. When did they realize you play the cello on top of acting?
I've known Jason [Schwartzman, one of the creators] since he was a teenager. They knew I could play — not that they ever heard me in person. During the first season they had a Post-it on the wall that read, "Dermot cello." So by the time the show was a success, they roped me in.

On Nick Jonas

"Careful What You Wish For" features another musician-actor, Nick Jonas. Mulroney is a fan. "He has incredible talent pouring out of him, and not just musically," he says. "I had such a great time working on this movie. It's an old-school thriller — that's hard to come by these days. Like any good movie, it's hard to make."

Nate Berkus sold his perfect Greenwich Village duplex

He did get a cool $10M for it.

Luxury Listings NYC

LLNYC focuses on high-end apartment and townhouse listings in Manhattan

Remember Nate Berkus and Jeremiah Brent's absolutely dreamy Greenwich Village duplex apartment? Well, no surprise, but the interior design power duo has managed to sell the place at 39 Fifth Ave. for $9.8 million to financier and jewelry designer Charles de Viel Castel. Emily Beare of Core had the listing.

The couple did take a hit on the apartment, which they listed in November for $10.5 million. According to the listing, the 2,800-square-foot co-op has three bedrooms, two and a half bathrooms, a chef's kitchen, three fireplaces, a wraparound terrace, a huge walk-in closet with divided his and his sections, a playroom with built-in bookshelves and eastern and southern views of the city. It is located on the 14th and 15th floors of the prewar co-op building, which was designed in the 1920s by Emery Roth.

The apartment was featured on the cover of Architectural Digest this past October, and reportedly, the couple decided to list it after they received many offers. ISABEL SCHWAB

Inside Look: 4 Upper East Side bargains

Parts of the UES, for now, are still a sweet deal compared to certain areas of Brooklyn and Queens.

CRISTABELLE TUMOLA
@CristabelleT
cristabelle.tumola@metro.us

The Upper East Side is usually thought of as the uber-rich center of Manhattan, full of Park Avenue penthouses and multi-million dollar townhomes.

But travel east of Lexington Avenue and there are bargains and more modest apartments.

The Second Avenue subway, set to open at the end of this year, is threatening to raise rents, but for now, the area is still an option as renters get pushed farther and farther into Brooklyn and Queens.

We found four UES apartments, just over and under $2,000 per month, and located between First and York avenues, as NYC experiences its peak rental season.

Phil Jackson and new Knicks head coach Jeff Hornacek desperately want to make a pick on Thursday night. GETTY IMAGES

Knicks will need to get creative if they want to make a pick in draft

Phil Jackson may need to wait until July 1 to start making big moves.

TONY WILLIAMS
sports@metro.us

Knicks president Phil Jackson is known for winning and working his magic, but he'll really earn his reputation this summer should he figure out a way to retool his roster and get New York back into the postseason.

That all begins Thursday night with the draft, but the journey will be full of roadblocks considering the Knicks don't even own a pick. The faithful can thank the Andrea Bargnani trade of three years ago for the loss of that valuable first-round pick.

That exchange, which included Marcus Camby, Steve Novak, this year's first-round pick, and two future second-round picks, seems so long ago — but it's finally coming back to roost.

Jackson is going to have to get creative and use his basketball savvy to recoup something on Thursday.

Help could be on the way for the pick-less Knicks, though, as the team invited the media to their facilities for a draft viewing — which may lend credence to the rumors that the team will at least try and buy a second round pick. Trying to recover their lost first rounder, though, will be too steep — and the Knicks have very little tradeable assets anyway.

If Jackson wants to continue to stack good drafts consecutively, though, he'll need to pull off a draft night that was similar to last year's when he snagged a young Latvian at No. 4 — much to the chagrin of the faithful at the time — and turned Tim Hardaway Jr. into promising point guard Jerian Grant. Jackson also traded for the draft rights of Kristaps Porzingis' former Spanish League teammate, big man Willy Hernangomez, last year — but he's yet to play in the league. Hernangomez, a 6-foot-10 power forward, may be ready this year, as there are sources who state the team may be ready to offer a four-year, $4.5 million deal — but nothing can be officially offered and signed until July 7.

However Jackson works Thursday night, it's only a precursor to what he needs to do come July 1. That's when the free-agent period begins, and that will be the true litmus test. And with the salary cap expected to explode with the new television deal in place, every team will have extra cash flow.

It's no longer chic to sell prospective free agents on the notion that you can only be a star in a big-market like New York. Stars are popping up all over the NBA landscape these days in places like San Antonio, Cleveland, Minnesota, and Sacramento, so Jackson is going to need a really solid pitch. Outside of Carmelo Anthony's force-out in Denver in 2011, and Amar'e Stoudemire's free-agent arrival the year before that, it's been a long time since a true star free agent has openly pined to come here.

Thursday night could be the first step in changing that notion, and having stars wanting to gravitate here again. But it's going to take some serious dealing for Jackson and the Knicks to work their magic on the draft board.

Knicks notes

- It must've been so difficult for Knicks fans to see former players like J.R. Smith, Iman Shumpert, Timofey Mozgov, and Channing Frye pick up rings with the Cleveland Cavaliers, Sunday night. But with LeBron James noting that Smith was considered a "throw-in" asset in the three-way trade, Smith must be beaming knowing that he and his fellow Knicks castoffs have finally captured the championship.
- The Knicks have two former first-round selections in this year's draft that are no longer – pick No. 7 to Denver (the Anthony deal) and the aforementioned No. 9 pick that's heading to Toronto. The No. 37 pick that's heading to Houston was also a former Knicks pick.
- Should Hernangomez sign a deal, the Knicks would either have to clear some space or offer the mid-level exception. But with big men Kevin Seraphin and Lou Amundson free agents on July 1 and Derrick Williams having a player option – of which he'll likely opt-out of -- it shouldn't be a problem.

Mets, Yanks will be at center of trade rumors

Both New York teams have major needs.

MATT BURKE
@burke_metro
matthew.burke@metro.us

Both the Mets (36-32) and Yankees (34-35) should be active in the trade market before the MLB deadline on Aug. 1.

Both New York teams are hovering around .500 but both still have playoff hopes. The Mets looked brutal this past weekend at Citi Field as they lost three straight to the hapless Braves. There were World Series expectations set for this club and they certainly look like they could use a boost soon.

Sandy Alderson desperately needs to acquire a potent bat and that may mean softening his stance on trading right-hander Zack Wheeler — who will return from Tommy John surgery next month.

Of course, Wheeler was part of the Carlos Gomez deal with the Brewers that fell through last season.

David Lennon of Newsday recently reported that the Mets have "close to zero interest" in trading Wheeler but all names will have to be on the table if Alderson expects to get anything resembling a top-flight hitter in the next month and a half.

Alderson can change his mind quickly on matters as ESPN reported on Tuesday that the Mets are now "at least considering" bringing back shortstop Jose Reyes, who was designated for assignment by Colorado last week.

"His energy to play the game, his love to play the game in NYC, it's hard to find."
Terry Collins, to ESPN, on Jose Reyes

Mets manager Terry Collins seemed open to a Reyes return to New York last week as he wistfully recalled the Reyes era in New York.

"When we lost Jose [in 2011] I thought, 'Boy, this is a major piece gone," Collins said, via ESPN. "His energy to play the game, his love to play the game, his love to play the game in New York City, it's hard to find. It's hard to find those guys. We missed him. I don't know what's going to happen down the road. Certainly, I always root for him."

As for the Yankees, it seems like every player on their roster has been mentioned in trade rumors. The names of Andrew Miller, Nathan Eovaldi, Brian McCann and Dellin Betances are routinely tossed around and C.C. Sabathia's name was added to that list this week as The Boston Globe's Nick Cafardo wrote that Sabathia has high trade value on the open market and that he could be open to moving.

Carlos Beltran is another Yankee who may be dealt if the Yanks don't start winning games at a higher clip. Kevin Kernan of the New York Post said this week that the San Francisco Giants "still love Beltran," and lo and behold, they're in the market for an outfielder.

C.C. Sabathia could be dealt if the Yankees don't start stringing together wins. GETTY IMAGES
